The Basics and Beyond

Adjustment to Desert Hiking

- Different climate – dry (except for monsoon thunderstorms)
- Exposure – typically out in the open with little to no shade
- Temperature – can be warm or hot even in the winter.
- Elevation – more of it
- Terrain – thorny, rocky and uneven
- Hydration/Electrolytes – critically important
- Snakes and animals

So, why on earth would we want to hike in the Sonoran Desert??

Answer: It is a wonderfully special place!

HIKING IN PATAGONIA AND ENGLAND

Wednesday, February 15

Submitted by Larry Linderman

Two of the classic hikes on most international "Best Of" lists usually include the "W" trail in Patagonia and the Coast-to-Coast trail in England. Last winter, Larry Linderman and Jackie Hall travelled to southern Chile to hike the "W," a five-day, 40-mile hike in the rugged Andes Mountain chain in southern Chile. Six months later they hiked 196 miles across northern England from the Irish Sea to the North Sea on a trail established by the famous English hiker, Alfred Wainwright.

Final thoughts

- Hike enjoyment depends on whether the following are right for you:

  - Hike Pace
  - Trail conditions
- Ask questions when signing up
- Try different guides
- Main purpose for a hike is hiking, not photography. Guides may accommodate other interests, but be considerate of other hikers
